Day 05: Day 5 - Day Tour Hemingway Route

Day dedicated to one of Havana's best-kept treasures is its close relationship with US writer Ernest Hemingway (1899-1961). Departure to Finca Vigia, which was his residence for two decades. Hemingway bought the house in 1939 and it was opened as a museum in 1964. It gathers all the moments of the writer's life in Cuba, his work, books, paintings, clothes, hunting weapons and others. Under a very peculiar concept of a museum, visitors can see what is inside the mansion through its large glass windows, thus everything that surrounded Hemingway in his late years appear before the visitor just as if they were part of a modern film as well as the many stages of his complex personality. Continue the visit to Cojimar, a fishing town east of the capital which inspired his novel The old Man and the Sea (the 1954 Nobel Prize Winner). Lunch in La Terraza de Cojimar restaurant where Hemingway celebrated his Nobel Prize with fishermen of the town.
